

Hello all~

We are nearing the end of this remarkable year of sharing, learning, experiencing, having our fears faced and our hearts broke open and healed again. You all were invited at the outset to bring your wisdom, experience and insight...to bring your selves...to the group learning container that we metaphorically called “the stew”. You have contributed in unique ways that we could not have predicted when we began. With that in mind, we invite you to enter this month of learning and sharing that has as its thread, the concept of incipience.

Incipient can be understood as “ FULL OF POTENTIAL “...” here I am in this moment, what possibilities can come from it?” Our more focused question for this month is : ‘how experience shifts and changes our own understanding and wonderings about death.’ During the past year, we have had moments when someone has shared a story that was so big and so personal and yet gave them air to breath in, and gifted us all with the possibilities beyond our own life experience. We, your mentors, feel that there is so much awe, mystery and wonder in moments that each of you have experienced on your life journey...and that those moments can open eyes and hearts in new and unexpected ways...the amazing ingredient of incipience can be added to our communal stew.

We are curious about personal experiences or stories about what is sometimes referred to as “woo-woo”:

NDE (near death experiences)

Deathbed visions and coincidences

Psychopomps

Anamaire

And anything at all that has impacted your view about death and dying...bring your people, your stories, your memories to share.
